RS, ELLEN PERRIN, Miss Dooley, Mrs, Rolfe Glover, Mrs. Crump, Miss Madge Freedley and Mrs, Alice Paimer received guests at the Woman's Club on yesterday afternoon at the informal reception, which followed the very interesting talk of Major M, Elizabeth Barter, of the Salvation Army.

Major Barter, who spoke before a large audience, introduced her address by a few remarks explaining the aim and work of the Salvation Army and the spirit of endurance with which the officers and solders have been endowed since the organization of this world-wide influence. She dwelt especially on the early history of the movement, which dates back only thirty years in this country, and their belief in simplicity and untiring efforts to care for the physical needs of those in sorrow and distress.

At present there are more than 909 corps and more than 2,000 officers, ministers and workers engaged in public service, and they have been instrumental in establishing a number of hotels for people of moderate means; also industrial homes, posts and rescue homes throughout the country. Major Barter attended about three weeks ago the twenty-fifth anniversary of the famous Bowery corps of workers of New York City, she being for some time a member of the

Miss Birdsong Returns.
Miss Neilie Birdsong has returned from Columbia University, New York City, where she has been a student and assistant teacher in the Horace Mann School, the model school of the university system. A scholarship has been awarded her for 1909-10, and she will return to take her B. S. degree.

Miss Birdsong will represent her college at the Students' Conference, which takes place at Silver Bay, Lake George,
Miss Myrtle Robertson, in Norfolk, when their daughter, Miss Ida Robertson, and Samuel Drury Hardy were married.

Rev. Joseph Rennie, of the First Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given away by her father wore a smart going-away gown of tan broadcloth, with hat and gloves to match. Her flowers were Bride roses and lilles of the valley.

fusion in the halls and pariors, while in the dining-room the same color scheme was prettily carried out.

Fred Sternhelmer was best man, and Master Louis I. Sycle, in an embroidered Buster Brown suit, was the dainty ring-bearer. Miss Florence Sternhelmer, the bride's sister, attended her as maid of honor. She wore a smart lingerie frock of white batiste, lacetrimmed, and carried a sheath bouquet of maidenhair fern.

The bride entered the pariors with Isaac Sternhelmer, of Norfolk, who gave her away. Her wedding dress of white satin was made en princess, with train, and was elaborately trimmed with handsome duchess lace. Her long tulle veil was caught with a crown of illies of the valley and a diamond brooch, the groom's gift. She carried a shower bouquet of Bride roses and littles of the valley.

"Crosses of Honor" Conferred.

At Surry Courthouse on June 3 the Surry Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, conferred "Crosses of Honor" upon fourteen veterans of Surry county, in an unusually interesting and impressive manner. Before the time arrived, a good-sized audience assembled in the Baptist Church in spite of the threatening weather. The building was tastefully decorated with flowers, flags, and the usual Confederate colors, and a choir selected from the chapter, assisted by a quartet of young men, "made the welkin ring" with the sweet old Southern songs.

Mrs. F. L. Holmes presided, introducing the speakers, of whom there were three. John Marable, of Surry, who wore the gray for four years, told in a most interesting and instructive manner of his varied and thrilling experiences, and Rev. Richard White, pastor of the Baptist Church of Jarratt, Va., delighted the audience in a speech of rare good taste and eloquence, delivered in his most inmitable style. He was followed by Dr. C. W. Ashop, of Surry, who gave a short talk in his usual happy vein.

WORKING ON BATTLESHIPS

Philadelphia Navy-Yard Scene of Unusual Bustle, and Activity.
PHILADELPHIA, PA., June 7.—The Philadelphia navy-yard is the scene of unusual bustle and activity these days as a result of efforts that are being made to rush the work on the battleships Kansas, Georgia and Idaho, which are under orders to leave the yard on June 15 to join the reorganized
Atlantic fleet at Norfolk for the summer cruise.

Atlantic fleet at Norfolk for the summer cruise.

The three battleships, which have been at the yard since shortly after their return from the "round the world" cruise, have been undergoing extensive alterations. The most obvious changes are the removal of the greater part of the upper works, the applying of the new regulation lead-colored paint and, most striking of all, the replacing of the familiar type of military masts by the new fire control masts, constructed from many small iron pipes, underwoven like basketwork.

American Prelates in Rome,
